II. IAU WiA WG 11th Feb, 2022 event on ‘Meet the Scientists’ on the International Day of Women and Girls in Science

The IAU Women in Astronomy ‘Meet the Scientists’ event was organized on 11th Feb, 2022, for worldwide female students and researcher in Astronomy to promote International Day of Women and Girl’s in Science and encourage female students to take up STEM career.

Inspiring lady scientists, Prof. Dame Jocelyn Bell Burnell (University of Oxford, UK) and Prof. Rohini Godbole (IISC, India) were invited as they have played a great role in inspiring younger generation women scientists all over the world. Prof. Bell Burnell couldn’t attend the session due to unexpected health issues. This talk session was followed by an open panel discussion joined by Dr. Samaya Michiko Nissanke, Dr. Mamta Pommier, and Dr. Priya Hasan. The guests shared their career experiences, challenges faced by women with colored skin in Astronomy, and support offered by the colleagues and institutes during their career journey. They also shared their opinion about possible changes that should be implemented in research institutions in order to counter gender imbalance and discrimination. 105 participants (66.7% female, 33.0% male, 0.3% other genders) at different career stages (Fig. 1) and from 33 countries registered for the event. 36.2% participants held permanent positions and 63.8% were non permanent researchers and students.

A recorded version of the event is available at the-
2- YouTube channel- https://www.youtube.com/channel/UCViokvfBEQEWJZ0TOm2oXxQ

The motivation of the participants to attend this event was to expand their knowledge about the situation of Women in Astronomy, listen to the career experiences of leading scientists, stay motivated, encourage younger generation, gain confidence when trying to find a place and make name in the community, and to support women empowerment for the development of the society, especially in Africa.

A summary of feedback received from these participants are as below-
The overall feedback received by the participants for this event was very encouraging.
III. IAU WiA WG 8th March, 2022 event on ‘Enterprising Women in Astronomy’ on the International Women’s Day

The IAU WiA ‘Enterprising Women in Astronomy’ event was organized on 8th March, 2022, for worldwide female researcher in Astronomy to promote International Women’s Day and encourage researchers in STEM.

Dr. Mamta Pommier gave a brief overview on the global IAU members and women in Astronomy working group. It is clear from the IAU members statistics that significant efforts are needed to increase the participation of members from all the genders in the Women in Astronomy WG activities inorder to minimize the factors affecting women career in Astronomy. Lady scientists Dr. Dr. Sthabile Kolwa, University of Johannesburg, South Africa, Dr. Helen Mason, University of Cambridge, United Kingdom, Dr. Itziar Aretxaga, INAOEP, Mexico, Prof. Sara Seager, O.C., Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, MA, USA, and Dr. Stella Kafka, Exec. Director American Meteorological Society Boston, USA were invited to share their career journey, celebrate their achievements, and get inspired by their career paths. They have actively taken up new initiatives, created resources, and supported either their own career in difficult circumstances or have supported the career of women and young girls in Astronomy down to school level by creating new opportunities. 93 participants (89.2% female, 9.7% male, 1.1% other genders) at different career stages (Fig. 2) and from 33 countries registered for the event. 49.5% participants held permanent positions and 50.5% were non permanent researchers and students.

The motivation of the participants to attend this event was to promote and encourage the role of women in science, learn about the current issues and status of women in astronomy, learn from experts (women) with different approaches in astronomy study and career possibilities, support diversity and inclusion in astronomy, identify the turning points in the career of Women astronomers and efforts needed to retain women in Astronomy who are highly marginalized and underpaid. The overall response received by the participants for this event was excellent!
